DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 2, 5, 6, and 9-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Beliveau (CA 2,256,091). Beliveau teaches insulating foam panels 8 having top and bottom sides each including a single median row of alternating projections and recesses having similar complementary shapes, the row is between two edge surfaces, and the projections and recesses are interconnectable with similar panels. The shape of the projections and recesses is generally rectangular. There are a plurality of connectors 2 hingedly tying together the first and second foam panels, which are movable between an extended position and a collapsed position.

The connector further comprises a pair of anchor members 10, the anchor members have an elongated flange plate 14, an elongated link element 18, a web member 12 extended between first and second foam panels and having ends that are hingedly connected to the projecting end of the anchor member. The projecting end of the anchor member has a stabilizing plate 16 parallel to the flange plate extending flush with the inner surface of the panel.

Art Unit: 3635

There is a plurality of connecting elements on the stabilizing plate, the connecting element having two aligned ridges 22 projecting from the plate and defining a sleeve, and a joining pin is mountable in the sleeve. The side end of the web member defines a plurality of arms having an extremity. The ridges of the connecting element have a hole facing inwardly of the sleeve and there exists a bore in the arm of the web member (Figure 3).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 3, 4, 7, and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Beliveau (CA 2,256,091). Beliveau teaches a panel system as stated above, except for projections with rounded corners and recesses with convex lateral sides. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to change the shape of the projections and recesses, since a change in shape would be considered an obvious design choice, and since by applicant's own admission in the specification on page 5 (lines 10-15), many other shapes could be used and projections with square or other forms would be efficient.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
